

The below message is from Michael Usher of Ushers Estate Agents:

I run a successful family business in the London borough of Sutton but needed to update my website. I was recommended Grant (GS Computers) from another customer who had used them, who were very happy with the service they received, so I decided to contact him.

Grant had an initial & quite lengthy conversation without obligation to discuss my website ideas, I quickly decided I was happy to use him for my project. He was very on the ball and grasped quickly what I needed and worked with me with my initial ideas to then tweak/ change and help me produce my current website which I am really pleased with.

Nothing was too difficult for him and he gave me an estimated timescale & price, which was competitive and stuck to both. You don't get many companies that do that.....

Having used the new website for over 6 months now I can honestly say I have only had very one small blip, which Grant had sorted within a matter of an hour, it has run smoothly from day one and has done everything I needed it to.

There are so many companies that offer website design out there but how do you know if they are any good to not? Grant emailed me links to others he had done and agreed that he could produce what I was after. He is local, is his own boss like I am, so you know he will give you a more personal service than bigger competitors and more importantly competitive.

I can whole heartedly recommend him/ his company to you if you need anything from technical support to designing a website or supplying a new computer. On that point, he also supplied me with a new computer that I desperately needed, using his contacts to beat any parts prices I could find and it was much better value than Dell could supply, with him helping me get a top spec for a low price. Most companies want you to buy a low spec for a top price. If you want good service from a highly motivated individual, all for a competitive price, then you look no further!
